Executive Correspondence and Tasking for Federal Government

- Full support of structured and unstructured processes
- Document Management
- Records Management
- Mobile Support

Within the United States Federal Government, correspondence and task tracking and execution plays a huge role in how government agencies communicate and interact internally and with their constituents.

Agencies will have statutory requirements to manage and respond to this correspondence in a consistent and auditable manner.

For any organization, this can be a laborious process, but especially for a government serving over 324,000,000 people, with many moving parts. This backbreaking, multi-step process also costs the government a very significant amount of money and thus taxpayers a large amount.
